PRESIDENT, OTTAWA VAAD HAIR
JEWISH COMMUNITY COUNCIL

Israel May 1992. Once again I am fortunate to be in Israel. There is always that feeling of anticipation and excitement as the plane lands and the delight of familiar streets, sounds and people. Coming so soon after Yom Ha'Atzmaut flags were everywhere in evidence. I arrived in Jerusalem to find a parade of young people singing and dancing to inaugurate the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the unification of Jerusalem.

There are two very important kinds of things occurring in Netanya now, the success of which is critical to the future of Israel. One is the progress in Neot Herzl, Ottawa's Project Renewal neighbourhood, the other is the absorption of the Russian olim. What links the two in a way that is typical of the way change is occurring in Israel is that there are now some 200 families of Russian olim now living in Neot Herzl.

Neot Herzl: A visit to Neot Herzl is a highlight of any stay in Israel. Ottawans are very warmly welcomed. I am always overwhelmed by the very warm and close feelings for Ottawa that are expressed in Neot Herzl. Although only a few months had passed since my last visit to this area there were some visible changes. More houses are undergoing enlargement and upgrading as part of overall neighbourhood improvement. Grass is in evidence as are flowers. We spent some time with the seniors in their day care activities and danced at a birthday celebration. We dropped in on an after school program designed to support children whose families are in difficulty. These youngsters come to the after school program daily, receive a hot meal, do their homework under supervision, and then play. For these kids Project Renewal will hopefully mean that they will have the confidence and interest to remain in school.

Considerable progress has been made on the community centre project which we are helping to build. Approvals of the site plan are now well underway as is the process of obtaining a building permit. The school, which currently occupies part of the community centre site, is definitely being closed at the end of this current school term. The community centre will move in during the summer to plan for fall programming. Programming will begin in a small way while the facility is under construction. Once completed the community centre will house a senior's day care centre, a library, meeting and activity rooms, among others.

Immigrant Absorption: Because the aliyah from Russia is less in the news we might think that only a handful of olim are coming to Israel. That "handful" is now 4000 to 5000 per month, still a significant number. But whatever the numbers of recent arrivals, there are tens of thousands of relatively new immigrants who continue to require assistance as they settle into life in Israel. Getting them to Israel is not difficult (there are now direct flights to Israel - via El Al - from places like Tashkent!); providing the myriad of facilities to ensure successful absorption is the real challenge.

The City of Netanya, which has among the highest concentrations of Russian newcomers in the country (some 20 percent of its population), is doing some very exciting things with respect to immigrant absorption. An information centre staffed with volunteers has been set up by the municipality. Its purpose is to have all of the services of relevance to newcomers available in one location and, thereby to reduce the bureaucratic hassles they face. On any one day there are volunteers from the Association of Americans and Canadians in Israel, the British olim society, Wizo, etc. providing information to olim about health care, luggage location, accommodation, welfare service for needy immigrants, courses, and so forth. These volunteers also search for jobs for olim and assist with their social integration into Israel. The municipality has opened a restaurant for new immigrants, which provides hot meals at a symbolic price.

The information centre organizes training courses for the olim, some of which, again, are very innovative. For example, arrangements are made for olim who are teachers to spend time in regular classrooms as teachers' assistants. This allows the olim to become comfortable with the Israeli classroom environment and provides the regular teachers with quality classroom assistance; as a result of this program, many of the olim have found teaching positions. Indeed, the olim have solved a long-standing shortage of math and science teachers in some of the outlying areas of the country. A second strategy used in Netanya for retraining is to mount courses for olim in the trades once work has been guaranteed for at least half of the course members.

To be sure, the process of absorption is difficult, but it is also exciting. We in Ottawa have a real stake in these two important projects underway in Netanya. Efforts will be made to keep you informed about both of them. We can maintain a tangible connection to Israel through our project in Netanya. I hope many of you have the opportunity to visit this Renewal community.

Commentary

Cynthia Engel
EDITOR

It is seven ayem of the very day we are going to press and I am seated at my computer where I have been since the alarm went off at five. As always in May, these have been a very long several weeks spent putting together two, count 'em, issues of the Bulletin — the regular and the special edition. There are moments during that period when I'm not sure exactly where I'm going. Or if I've already gone!

My sincere thanks to all those whose task it was to provide a report for the 'Special'. As always, the majority got those reports in by deadline, typewritten, double-spaced and well done. By honoring that deadline, you cannot, in your wildest dreams, imagine the mitzvah you performed for this Jewish girl! You cannot imagine the plethora of blessings I heap on the heads of those who co-operate so wonderfully and well. The 'Special' is a colossal drag to collate and assemble, check and recheck. But it is also a precious and important annual reflection of our community and a major contribution to its recorded history.

Take time to read it... (at this point I've got it memorized!)... our committees, our agencies, institutions and organizations, are busy and productive. This Ottawa Jewish Community of ours is, indeed, a going concern.

Israel's 44th celebrated with a congenial l'chaim at Kinneret

Ambassador Shelef welcomes His Excellency, The Most Reverend Carlos Curis, Pro-Nuncio.

His Excellency Jose Luis Pardo, Ambassador of Spain to Canada, is warmly received.

On Thursday, April 30, three hundred and fifty invited guests joined host and hostess Ambassador and Mrs. Itzhak Shelef for a lunchtime l'chaim at Kinneret on the occasion of Israel's 44th Anniversary of Independence. With the weather co-operating fully, the congenial gathering shared in the happy occasion.

Ambassador and Mrs. Shelef greet Zha Peixin, Minister-Counsellor, Embassy of the People's Republic of China. The occasion marked China's first-ever participation in an Embassy of Israel function.

The sun smiled on guests as they mingled in the garden.

Quarter-century of service recognized

JTS confers honorary degree on Rabbi Arnold Fine

NEW YORK — Arnold Fine, spiritual leader of Agudath Israel Congregation, received an honorary doctor of divinity degree from The Jewish Theological Seminary of America recently for a quarter-century of service to the Jewish community.

The degree was awarded to 29 members of the Rabbinical Assembly at a special convocation ceremony held on March 17 at the Seminary, 3080 Broadway in Manhattan.

Rabbi Ismar Schorsch, chancellor of the Seminary, presented the honorary degrees and delivered the convocation address.

Extremely proud

"These rabbis", said Rabbi Schorsch, "can be extremely proud of the honor they have brought to the Rabbinical Assembly, the Conservative Movement, and their alma mater (the Seminary). Through their accomplishments and personal integrity, they are truly a blessing to the Jewish people."

Rabbi Fine served congregations in Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Massachusetts

before coming to Ottawa nearly 11 years ago.

He also served as the executive director of the Associated synagogues of Massachusetts. In that capacity he was responsible for the Board of Rabbis and Jewish chaplaincies in the Boston area.

Interfaith work

In addition to his involvement in all aspects of Agudath Israel, he was a founder of the Christian Jewish dialogue of Ottawa-Carleton and has done extensive interfaith work. He was a co-producer and co-host of the radio program, "Focus Religion", which ran for more than seven years.

Rabbi Fine has served on the executive of the Ottawa Vaad Ha'Ir, chaired the panel on Jewish education and was instrumental in bringing the teenage scholarship plan for Israeli travel to reality.

Outreach to the ill

He has worked closely with Jewish Family Service to initiate outreach to the ill and to develop groups for people, with specific concerns.

He also chairs the Pastoral Advisory Committee at the Elizabeth Bruyere Hospital and has been active in a similar effort at the Ottawa Civic Hospital.

Rabbi Fine served as the Jewish Chaplain at the Massachusetts Rehabilitation Hospital in Boston and Uncas on Thames Hospital for the Chronically Ill in Connecticut.

He and his wife, Charlene Milson Fine, have three daughters, Hana, Alieza and Shira, a son, Daniel, daughter-in-law, Heidi, and a granddaughter, Talia.

The day's events began at 10:30 a.m. with seminars at which the rabbis shared with students currently in the Rabbinical School some of their experiences. A luncheon hosted by Rabbi Schorsch followed.

Designed to meet needs

Now in its second century, the Jewish Theological Seminary of America is a university-level educational institution with broad-based undergraduate, graduate, rabbinical and professional programs designed to meet the diverse needs of Jewish life in the modern world. The Seminary serves as the spiritual center of traditional (Masorti) Judaism worldwide and offers North America's most extensive program of advance Jewish studies.

View from the Pulpit

The Minority View: Klal Yisrael

By Rabbi Mordecai Berger
Young Israel Congregation

As we approach the holiday of Shavuot, the following excerpt from the Talmud is quite timely. Rabbi Akiva, the great Jewish sage, was once asked why he persisted in teaching Torah publicly at a time when such teaching was banned by the Emperor and punishable by death. Rabbi Akiva replied with the parable of a sly fox who when observing fish fleeing the fisherman's net called out to them: "Why do you not come onto the land where you will be safe from fishermen and you and I can dwell together in harmony?" To which the fish replied "You foolish fox! If we are in danger in the water, the source of our lives, how much more would we be in danger on dry land?"

This excerpt is written on the gravestone of Rabbi Akiva who is buried in Tiberias. It serves as an everlasting message to the Jewish people, in their challenge of retaining Yiddishkeit.

One of the main purposes of Jewish education is to prepare the child for life in an environment in which Jews form a minority. Jews have always been the "smallest amongst the nations but our strength does not lie in numbers. It is the Jewish destiny to be a "Kingdom of Kohanim and a holy nation, living according to our Torah." Adhering to and practicing the high standards of our Mitzvos in everyday life has made us different but in this lies our strength and this is what preserved us through the ages. This Jewish consciousness and pride in our destiny has to be implanted in our children from the earliest formative years.

The vital importance of such an education cannot be overemphasized. The fact that we live in a democratic country with a full measure of freedom makes this Jewish consciousness even more imperative for since we are a minority, the forces of assimilation assert themselves here more strongly than elsewhere.

It is the duty of the Jewish educator to remove any vestige of inferiority complex about his Jewishness in a predominantly non-Jewish environment.

There is no better time than the holiday of Shavuot to remember the parable of Rabbi Akiva. A Happy Shavuot to all.

Israeli company stands to benefit

Commercial prospects for interferon look rosy

REHOVOT, Israel — likely to benefit from this development is InterPharm Laboratories, an Israel company that produces and markets several varieties of interferon, all based on biotechnology know-how developed by Prof. Michel Revel's group at the Weizmann Institute's Department of Molecular Genetics and Virology.

Prof. Revel, who divides his time between the Institute and InterPharm is clearly pleased at this turn of events.

"When interferon and its activities in the body were first discovered," he recalls, "the protein was hailed as a wonder drug that would cure cancer, the common cold, and scores of other diseases. Today, while realistic estimates point to more restricted uses for the drug, it has already been approved for use in various herpes and papilloma virus infections, particularly of the genital region, as well as in the therapy for the AIDS-related cancer Kaposi's sarcoma and in a rare form of leukemia. Many other applications are now being tested in patients and markets for the drug are expected to eventually reach the one billion dollar level."

In 1983, Revel's group developed a genetically engineered cell line derived from Chinese hamster ovary tissue, which produces massive amounts of beta-interferon that is identical to that manufactured in the human body. Following an extensive development phase, conducted during the last three years by InterPharm and Weizmann Institute scientists, an F.D.A. permit has already been issued in the United States for clinical testing of this beta-interferon. This technology provides the company with a front-running product for sale in an expanding interferon market.

The Weizmann Institute and InterPharm are also collaborating in the development of engineered hamster ovary cells producing the natural biological modifying agent interleukin-6 — discovered and cloned 11 years ago in the same Institute laboratories. This protein has shown promise in animal experimentation for treating cancer and speeding bone marrow transplantation. But clinical trials of interleukin-6 are still about a year off.

Commercial development of interferon and interleukin-6 was negotiated by Yeda Research and Development Company, responsible for assigning technology developed at the Weizmann Institute.

Now that winter is FINALLY over, out comes the BBQ. Grills are cleaned, coals are changed and the cobwebs are washed off. To us, barbecuing is a way of life and not just summer cooking. Not only is it a more informal way of cooking, but one in which the whole family participates. Food always seems to taste better on the BBQ: vegetables grilling them seems to bring out the most incredible flavours!

Grilled Veal Chops with Onion & Red Pepper Chutney

1/3 cup lemon juice
1/4 cup olive oil
2 Tbsp. chopped fresh thyme
2 Tbsp. minced scallions
1 clove garlic, minced
4-6 1" thick veal chops (lg. 1st cut)
Onion and red pepper chutney (recipe follows)
Salt and pepper to taste

Mix first 5 ingredients in a small bowl. Place veal in a shallow pyrex and pour marinade over. Turn once to coat evenly. Let stand 1 hour at room temperature. Preheat BBQ. Remove veal from marinade. Season with salt and pepper. Grill to taste, about 5 minutes per side for medium rare. Serve with Chutney. Serves 4. Recipe can be increased.

Onion and Red Pepper Chutney

4 red bell peppers, halved and seeded
1 Tbsp. olive oil
1 red onion, halved and thinly sliced
Chili powder to taste
2 cloves garlic, minced
1/2 cinnamon stick
2 Tbsp. red wine vinegar
1/4 cup chicken broth
1 tsp. tomato paste (freeze any leftover in ice cube tray)

Char peppers over BBQ until blackened on all sides. Wrap in paper bag and let stand 10 minutes. Peel and coarsely chop. Heat oil over medium high heat. Add onion and cook 10 minutes. Add peppers, chili powder, garlic, and cinnamon and sauté 2 minutes. Add vinegar, then broth and tomato paste. Reduce heat and simmer until it is thick and chunky, stirring occasionally, about 20 minutes. Discard cinnamon stick. Cool. (Can be prepared 3 days ahead. Cover and chill. Bring to room temperature before using). Serves 4. Recipe can be increased.

Mashed Sweet Potatoes with Pecans

3 lbs. sweet potatoes
1/4 cup unsalted margarine, cup up
1 Tbsp. brown sugar
1 tsp. grated lemon peel
1 tsp. grated orange peel
2 eggs beaten well
3/4 cup coarsely chopped pecans

Preheat oven to 350°. Place sweet potatoes on baking sheet and pierce with a fork. Roast until tender, about 1 hour 15 minutes. Cool slightly. Peel and mash. Stir in margarine, sugar and fruit peels. (Can be prepared 1 day ahead. Cover and refrigerate). Preheat oven to 350°. Mix eggs into potato mixture. Pour into 1 1/2 to 2 quart baking dish and sprinkle with pecans. Bake until puffy, about 1 hour. Serves 4.

Spinach Sesame Salad

2 1/2 lbs. fresh spinach
1 Tbsp. white sesame seeds
2 Tbsp. rice or cider vinegar
1 tsp. soy sauce
1/2 tsp. minced fresh ginger
2 drops or more sesame oil
1/8 tsp. sugar

Wash spinach very well, and remove stems. Place spinach in a large pot. Cover and steam in the moisture clinging to the leaves, until wilted, about 2 minutes. Remove and place in a colander. Blot off moisture with paper towels. Cool. Chop coarsely. Toast sesame seeds in a small frying pan until just golden. Watch carefully. In a small jar, combine the rest of the ingredients. Shake well to combine. Pour over the spinach, drain off excess dressing and toss with sesame seeds. Serves 4.

Nostalgic look back in time

Autobiography will bring tears to many an eye

Were you or your parents Ottawa campers in the thirties?

Did you go to the Tel Aviv Tennis Club? Jesse Abelson's gym?

Did you hang out at Tesky's?

In 1971 Harold Rubin completed the manuscript he had dreamed about writing all his adult life. Then he died of cancer. The work he left is an intriguing compilation of memories about the Rubin family, their accommodation to Ottawa in 1912 and the many immigrant families and friends who became a part of their lives.

Mr. Rubin was the first director of the Jewish scout camp that became the forerunner of Camp B'nai B'rith. Friends and companions who enjoyed the fun of growing up in Ottawa in the 1920's and 1930's will delight at Mr. Rubin's recall as he describes Barney Weiss' delicatessen on Rideau Street, the Tel Aviv Tennis Club and reciprocal baseball games with the Kingston Jewish community. People, stories and events are deftly described along with Mr. Rubin's tongue in cheek sense of humour.

The 200 page book deals with his early life, education, and friends, and continues on to a revealing description of his training as the only Jew in the Governor General's Foot Guards and his subsequent enlistment in the RCAF during World War II. Mr. Rubin was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

The manuscript was given to the Ottawa Jewish Historical Society largely as separate anecdotes by Sorrell Rubin Gwartzman, Mr. Rubin's daughter, and was edited into a two part book by Shirley Berman. It contains some of his original songs and poems created during early Jewish scout camps.

The soft covered book entitled "Those Pesky Weeds" will appear in early July as the Society's first publication. A limited number of books is being offered at the pre-publication price of $18.00. All profits from the book will support the work of the Society and our community archives. Those interested in securing a copy of the book at the pre-publication price should clip and mail the coupon which appears after the following excerpts from the book.

How Jesse Abelson secured the gymnasium on the top floor of the Number 4 fire station is now past history. Alderman Desjardins who lived in Lowertown was a good friend of the Jewish immigrants who lived in his ward, and our YMHA began there. Once weekly the Juvenile basketball team comprising Abe Miller, the Molot and Pearl brothers, Nate Abelson, and a few others practised and played in the local basketball circles. The younger boys formed a basketball circuit amongst themselves. A few names that come to mind are Archie Levitan, Max Braverman and Louis Dibkin. We not only played basketball on Saturday nights, but we took advantage of the parallel bars, springboard, and mat, to practice gymnastics twice a week.

Every year Mother purchased a number of pieces of new crockery, including a perennial teapot, and before the holiday we made our yearly journey to Joe Toronto's hardware store on Dalhousie Street for these replacements. Our cutlery remained from the extensive silverware brought with us from Minsk, however, cups and saucers and other crockery always needed replacement. Every Jewish family visited Toronto's for their requirements and invariably we met a great number of people that we knew at Joe's store. One side of the store was devoted to barrels of straw which gave the store a permanently dishevelled appearance. Mother painstakingly chose white crockery which made it unnecessary to match existing dishes. Finally, with the new teapot my wagon would be loaded for home. We always had guests at our Passover table and the preparations continued unabated for two hectic days prior to the holiday. Holiday indeed!

Twice yearly we were visited by

Mr. Louis Sadinsky who would drive his horse and wagon right into our yard. Dismounting, he would call out and ask if we had any empty sacks. Mr. Sadinsky was a rugged featured man with a strong back, and biceps that struggled to escape the confines of his sleeves. He was a hard working individual for whom honesty was of prime importance.

Counting the piles carefully, he offered us the usual price of two cents per bag. He never tallied the number in each bundle, trusting our honesty. We accepted the crisp four or five dollars and helped him load the bundles onto his unpainted wagon. Then we made for the store where a bill was written to prove that our buyer had purchased his load legally.

Kudos for Robert Fulford

Dear Editor:

The article Helmut Kohl's Holocaust affront appearing in the April 23 Bulletin and reprinted from an editorial by Robert Fulford of the Financial Times was unusually good. It is rare indeed in the non-Jewish press to see opinions of the sort that the Financial Times expressed. Fulford is right on when he says that the Holocaust is not just a Jewish event and that there are lessons to be learned from it. By his actions, Kohl has demonstrated that there is little for Germany to learn from the Holocaust.

The article shows Fulford's clear understanding that the Holocaust has lessons for everyone. In particular, he refers to it as being a "central event in Christian civilization." Again, he is right on. The Holocaust may present a challenge to Judaism, but it presents a far greater challenge to Christianity. The Holocaust was a catastrophe for Jews, but not for Judaism. On the other hand, while not a catastrophe for most Christians, it was for Christianity. Nazism was in its essence anti-Christian, but only some Christians recognized this. The rise of Nazism in the heart of Christian Europe, the millions of Protestants and Catholics who saw Nazism as a Christian ally, and the silence of the Church during the Holocaust, all present serious problems for the serious Christian.

All this is not to say that every Christian during the Holocaust had a hand in Nazi evil. It is important to note that of those who did rescue Jews, a disproportionate number were believing Christians. And furthermore, the secular liberal democracies did not act any better than did many Christian countries of Europe.

So where are the lessons? There are many. The most important to be learned involves human nature. People are not basically good, they need to be taught to be good. The generally accepted Western belief that people are basically good is foolish. If people are basically good, how do we explain the vast amounts of evil that occur in the world? Why is it rational to believe that people are basically good when in this century we have had Cambodia, Ukraine, Armenia, and many others? Why do we label the people who inflict the most horrible cruelties on others "sick"? Can it be that during the Holocaust most of Europe suffered collectively from psychosis?

People need to learn to be good. And interestingly, Jews and the world need a vibrant and morally concerned Christianity. When Christianity fails we often get Nazism, Communism and Hedonism; all movements not sympathetic to Jewish or Christian values. We need to learn that during the Holocaust, it was not Christianity, but an ideology that opposed both Jewish and Christian values that created the death camps.

Stephen Naor

Warm words of thanks

Dear Editor:

The theme used for this year's Yom Ha Shoah and for the opening of the Anna Frank Exhibition was "I still believe that people are good at heart." We should all remember and believe this simple, but important truth.

I am deeply grateful to our community for opening their hearts to Anna Frank High School Choir, the Chief Rabbi of Hungary, the Choir Master and the teacher who were part of the group. Everyone who gave so selflessly to make their stay a unique and unforgettable two weeks - devoting their time, love and energy and never losing patience. On behalf of the group and myself, I would like to say: Thank you. I find no better words than "G-d bless you and keep you in good health bis 120-ig."

PM Mulroney has yet to reply

Groups urge G-7 leaders to attend Dachau service

-By Ron CSMAR

An American Holocaust remembrance group and a German Jewish organization are urging the leaders of the G-7 nations, including Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, to attend a special memorial service at Dachau on July 5.

The G-7 leaders will meet in Munich, Germany for a summit beginning July 6, and the South Florida Committee to Remember the Holocaust, together with the Munich-based German-Israeli Society, wants them to seize the opportunity and go to the Dachau concentration camp just outside Munich.

The purpose would be to commemorate the Holocaust and tell the world, through the nearly 10,000 journalists present, that it should never happen again, according to committee co-chairman Robert Kunst. The leaders would lay wreaths and pay tribute to Dachau's victims, survivors and liberators.

"It's now or never," Kunst told the CJN in a telephone interview. "The G-7 leaders won't be in Germany again in a long time and probably not while there are survivors of Dachau left."

Kunst and his committee have sent letters to all the G-7 leaders and he says U.S. President George Bush and French President Francois Mitterrand have "left the door open" for a possible Dachau visit.

Replies from Mulroney, the leaders of Italy, Britain, Japan and Russian President Boris Yeltsin, who has been invited to the summit, haven't been received yet, Kunst said.

So far, the only fly in the ointment has been German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, who has turned down the committee's request.

A letter to Kunst from an aide says there is "no obvious reason for the Chancellor to address the Holocaust and Germany's responsibility for it, as you demand. I do not accept your premise that the Chancellor has not so far taken a clear and convincing position on the issue. He has done so in the past."

The letter goes on to state that Germany has condemned recent incidents of racism and xenophobia.

"Shame, shame, shame," Kunst shot back in a letter, saying that Kohl's decision is the latest incident to add insult to injury to Jews.

The committee's idea is for people to gather on July 5 at the memorial to the 11 Israeli athletes murdered at the Munich Olympic Games in 1972, and march the 25 kilometres to Dachau, where the G-7 leaders would preside over the service.

Kunst says Canada has a special role to play in that it could convince G-7 heavyweights like Bush, Mitterrand and Britain's John Major to attend the memorial, in which case Kohl would have no choice but to go.

No one from Mulroney's office returned The CJN's calls regarding the prime minister's plans at the G-7 summit.

Facts extremely disturbing

Jewish women break the silence, shatter myths

By Roslyn Postner

The reality of the economic dependency/poverty of women was explored at the JCC on Sunday evening April 16.

In an open and moving presentation, women from the Ottawa Jewish community told their own stories while commentator Sharon Sholzberg-Gray presented information that dispelled commonly held myths about the situation of Jewish women.

Second in series

The evening, moderated by Sylvia Gold, was the second in the series "The Role of Women in the Changing Jewish Family: Breaking the Silence," sponsored by the social action committee of the Ottawa Reconstructionist Havara and the JCC.

A young woman of 18, whose parents are divorced, expressed concern for her mother's future and the contradictions that left her father in a comfortable lifestyle and her mother in poverty. She spoke of her constant concerns about money and how financial constraints sometimes posed an obstacle to her attending Jewish community youth group activities.

Organizers sometimes do not take into consideration the fact that money might be a problem, she said, and she does not always find it easy to ask for a subsidy. Through her story, the audience was alerted to the fact that money can be a problem and a sensitive issue to some of our Jewish teens.

Attendees also heard about the slow and painful recovery to economic self sufficiency of a woman in middle years who found herself with little preparation and support for the stresses posed by a divorce and single parenthood. As well, her story illustrated the changed relationship with friends that women often encounter when they are no longer a part of a couple. Her friends were not available to her when she most needed support, she said. The lesson learned: a need exists to discover what would be of help and how to be supportive in these circumstances.

The story of a woman in the Ottawa community - now a senior - who has always struggled with economic difficulties, was equally disturbing. It was only in her 50's, she said, that she developed the confidence to take the kind of actions that gave her a sense of personal satisfaction in spite of economic limitations. Unfortunately, her independence is limited by poor health and the fact that she never learned to drive.

Not isolated incidents

That these women's stories are not isolated incidents became apparent from Sharon Sholzberg-Gray's comments. She exposed the harsh reality of the economic situation for Canadian women and dispelled the myth that Jewish women do not have to worry about finances.

Sharon Sholzberg-Gray
Commentator

Sholzberg-Gray prefaced her comments by drawing attention to the disadvantaged position of all women. Even though they make up approximately half of the population, world wide, women do two-thirds of the world's work, earn one-tenth of the world's income and own one-hundredth of the world's property, she pointed out.

Much of women's work is unrecognized or undervalued, the speaker said, and women who work in the home earn nothing. Sholzberg-Gray noted that, in Canada, women who work outside the home earn 63 per cent of what men earn and many of these also return home to do hours of household work, and, if they choose to take time out for the purpose of childcare, their seniority is affected and they are never able to make up the loss in income level.

Women are also at a disadvantage with respect to pensions, she said, as private pension plans cover only 37% of women as compared with 52% of men in the labor force.

Sholzberg-Gray says it is a myth to think that the CPP is enough for working women. Even when old age security and any guaranteed income supplement is included, women, if they do not have additional income will be below the poverty line, she said. Moreover most women do not even receive the maximum amount of CPP.

Disadvantaged for RRSP's

Women are also at a disadvantage when purchasing RRSP's, she said. Many women would not qualify because earned income is now defined as income from employment and support payments would not be considered as income in this case.

On the other hand, Sholzberg-Gray said, women have to pay tax on the money received for child support while men are able to use their support payment as a tax deduction.

The facts are extremely disturbing and the reality is that they also affect our Jewish community. Jewish women are widows and divorcees at no less a rate than other women. In divorce, Jewish men are not necessarily better providers. The woman becomes poorer while the standard of living of the man remains the same. If the woman has stayed at home, she has lost career time and pension benefits.

It is not easy for people to talk about these concerns, it is far simpler to talk about accomplishments. As a society we have developed the habit of presenting an image rather than facing our realities. Few people realize that there are over 400 Jewish single parents in Ottawa-Carleton region. It is only once we explore the realities that we can arrive at creative ways of being of help to each other.

The next event in the series, scheduled for Sunday, May 31, will address the topic of addiction. On Sunday, June 22, the topic will be violence in the family.

In both instances women from our community will tell their stories and a major part of the evening will be devoted to discussion and comments from the audience.

To become a part of breaking the silence or for more information telephone Barbara Nathan-Marcus at 323-3188 or Walter Hendelman at 235-9414.

Supported Independent Living Program

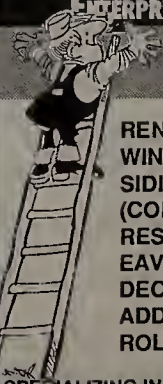

The supported independent living program (SIL) offers safe, supervised apartment living in a Jewish environment to adults having developmental disabilities.

Funded in part by the Ontario Ministry of Community and Social Services, SIL enables individuals to share an apartment while receiving the supports they require to live independently. Residential counselors provide support according to individual need to a maximum of 35 hours per week.

SIL is a unique opportunity for personal growth, companionship and community living. Tamir is taking applications for the program which begins in September 1992.

Rivers not exclusive to one nation

Water issue crucial in Middle-East peace talks

By David B. Brooks

Early in the movie version of Lawrence of Arabia, an Arab chieftain shoots and kills Lawrence's young guide because he had dared to drink water from a well that belonged to a different tribe. There is nothing inappropriate in that scene.

For most of recorded history, conflict in the Middle East has had more to do with water than with land, much less oil. None of the main rivers in the region belongs exclusively to a single nation, and the need to share water has challenged each civilization, each government.

Today, the situation is worse as almost every country in the region is experiencing alarming growth in demand for water and is "mining" supplies rather than treating water as a renewable resource.

Nowhere in the Middle East is the conflict over water sharper than in the Jordan River basin shared largely by Israel, the Occupied Territories, and Jordan — with Lebanon and Syria each having a smaller part of the basin. Indeed, some people argue that the next war in the region will be over access to water. A former Israeli water commissioner has called the water issue a "time bomb" that, in the absence of resolution, will demolish any arrangements with regard to Israeli-Palestinian peace.

Water in Israel

Compared with many parts of the Middle East, water should be an easier issue in Israel. The problem is not so much one of availability as of variability. Annual precipitation ranges from 1000 mm per year in the North to 50 mm in the South. Moreover, rain comes in the winter, but use peaks in the summer, mainly because of irrigation, but increasingly urban uses as well.

Surface sources have always been problematical, and groundwater has for centuries been the main source of supply for the region. (Consider how often wells are mentioned in Genesis, and how often they led conflict!) The entire flow of the Jordan River amounts to one-third of Israel's current use.

Today, the main sources of supply are the Coastal Aquifer, which parallels the Mediterranean coast, and the Mountain Aquifer (also called Yaqon-Tanimin Aquifer), which rises on the West Bank but which also flows westward and thus under pre-1967 Israel.

Supply: Economic Crisis

In the years just before the 1967 war, Israel was reaching the limit of its available fresh water supplies. The Coastal Aquifer was being used to its safe limit and the National Water Carrier, which brings water from Kinneret southward, was taking more than the country's share of Jordan River water.

After the 1967 War, Israel found itself in possession not only of the recharge area for the Mountain Aquifer but also most of the catchment (including the Golan Heights) for the Jordan River. Security of water had long been a military objective, and now water use could continue at high levels.

By the mid-1970s water use in Israel had again exceeded 100% of assured supply. Today use exceeds supply by some 200 million cubic metres (MCM) per year. Such levels of water use are supported only by over-pumping wells, which causes a decline in the water table, which in turn increases cost and energy use. It also permits seawater to flow into the over-pumped zones. One-tenth of wells in the Coastal Aquifer now produce water too salty for domestic use, and some are too salty even for agriculture.

It was the recognition of these facts that led the Israeli State Comptroller to issue a special report on water in December 1990 that referred to "25 Years of mismanagement". Part of the problem lies with habits borne in other regions: the average Israeli consumes five times as much water as does a Palestinian (or a Jordanian).

Irrigation part of problem

Moreover, unlike the Water Commissioner, who is responsible to the Minister of Agriculture, the Comptroller General had no hesitation at pointing to irrigation as another part of the problem. Farming accounts for nearly 2/3 of water use in Israel, and farmers get the water at highly subsidized prices — yet, contrary to the common impression, provide less than 10% of Israel's export earnings.

In sum, water quantity is more an economic than an ecological issue: from a supply perspective, there is plenty of water provided you can pay for it; from a demand perspective, the cheaper water is, the more abundantly (and wastefully) it will be used. Adding to the dilemma is renewed immigration, on the one hand, and successive years of low rainfall, on the other. The latest drought broke this winter — but others will occur.

Sharing: Political Crisis

Almost immediately after the 1967 war, Israel integrated West Bank and Gaza water resources into the Israeli system — de facto annexation of the resource. Since then it has maintained tight control with the result that Israel is now dependent for perhaps one-third of its total water and one-half of its drinking water on sources that originate in rainfall over the West Bank.

Most of that water continues to be tapped, as it was in the pre-1967 period, by wells drilled within Israel proper. In addition, however, West Bank (and Gaza) water is used to supply new Jewish settlements outside the boundaries of pre-1967 Israel. Today water consumption of the 115 or so Jewish settlements is close to that of the entire Palestinian population.

Questionable legality

There is of course nothing illegal or immoral about drilling vertically into an aquifer that happens to rise in land belonging to another nation. The supply of water in the aquifer, however, is kept flowing by measures applied on the West Bank that are of questionable legality and morality. For example:

- With rare exceptions, Palestinians are prohibited from drilling new wells for agricultural purposes; drilling is permitted for Jewish settlements.
- West Bank Arabs are not allowed to use water in farming after 4 p.m., which is the traditional (and rational) time for irrigation in arid climates.
- Reforestation is prohibited in the recharge areas of the aquifer, except on small, private plots.

- Jewish settlements receive heavy subsidies for water development, but West Bank Arabs none at all.

As a result of such policies, Palestinians are getting only about 15% of the potential supply of West Bank water.

Disturbing as these figures are, it is important not to exaggerate. The issue is one of economic development, not of thirst. Water Commissioner Meir Ben Meir stated the issue starkly: "If the demand is for drinking, we must say 'yes'; we do say 'yes'. But we are not going to stop irrigating our orchards so they can plant new ones."

Options for the Future

No one committed to peaceful resolution of the Arab/Israeli conflict denies the need for Israel to be secure in its water supply. While earlier attempts to create agreements to share water supplies in the region fell before Arab refusal to make any agreement with Israel — it would have implied recognition of sovereignty — now that recognition has become thinkable, so too are options for resolution of water problems. Academics on both sides of the Green Line are beginning to argue that there is more to be gained in sharing than hoarding water resources.

It was just this sort of approach that led to the Mediterranean Action Plan under which 16 nations (including Israel and her Arab neighbours) work together against marine pollution. While interests are less vital than those involving fresh water, it is notable that this regional cooperation plan has been operating successfully since 1976.

However, the situation is not simple. Even the "Need" for West Bank water in Israel is hotly contested. Water Commissioners and water companies (which, remember, report to the Minister of Agriculture) claim that Israel must hold onto the West Bank. Others respond that with more rational policies in Israel, there would be no need for West Bank water.

Three points seem basic to any agreement. First, enormously greater efforts for water conservation are needed in all sectors of the economy — despite the fact that Israel is already relatively efficient in its use of water.

Second, the power of the Ministry of Agriculture to control water supplies and use must be reduced. It is all very well to make the desert bloom, but sooner or later one has to ask "at what cost".

Finally, Palestinians in the Occupied Territories must receive more water right now and must also play a strong role in determining allocations of water for economic development in the future.

There is a possible quid pro quo here. Palestinians might find that sale of water to meet Israeli needs would provide them with the hard cash they need for development. One could even envision establishment of a bilateral (maybe trilateral) agreement for sharing water resources, as was apparently suggested at Camp David. But this requires a degree of trust that is hardly in evidence today.

There are many options for resolution of the multi-dimensional water problems in Israel. It is less important which option is selected than that some way be found — and soon — to bring water issues within the context of an overall peace solution.

Study of sciences has important role at OTI

"The Canadian and world economies are becoming increasingly knowledge-based and scientists and engineers are a key to our nation's economic success in the global marketplace," says OTI's Secular Director R. Alan Duffield.

"Science and engineering are critical to meeting our environmental challenges, and to maintaining our standard of living and quality of life," he adds. "For these reasons science plays a very important role in the academic studies of students at OTI."

This year the following science courses are being taught: Biology 9/10,

Teacher Andrew Robinson demonstrates molecular theory to OTI student Symon Foren.

Chemistry 12, Physics 12, Chemistry OAC.

Physical science and biology teacher H. Andrew Robinson notes that "training in science sharpens a student's thinking ability and is helpful in the study of every other subject."

This year biology students are learning about the structure of living cells, the characteristics and classifications of living things, the germination and growth of plants and the main groups of animals and organic systems. Each student is dissecting an earthworm, crayfish, grasshopper, perch, frog, oyster and starfish as part of the biology course.

The senior students are busy with their physics and chemistry courses. These courses emphasize the ways in which energy is transferred and converted and how reactions and physical properties change as a result of energy interactions.

John Brooks, senior science teacher, believes that the physics and chemistry courses form an excellent foundation for further studies for students wishing to become scientists or engineers and provide a sound understanding of the technical problems and choices which need to be made by informed citizens whatever their professions or occupations.

Student raises money for Op. Exodus again

A former Carleton University economics student came back to Ottawa on April 12 this year to teach a day-long exam preparation course, with half of the proceeds going to Operation Exodus.

David Lisbona, a first-year M.B.A. student at McGill, raised over $400 for the charity. About 20 people turned out for the six-hour session held at 151 Chapel Street.

Annual event

"I really wanted to make this an annual charity event for Operation Exodus, and I think I have done just that," Lisbona said. "I feel that in these recessionary times people in Canada have overlooked the plight of new immigrants in Israel."

He added that, "while the task now is not to bring them to Israel, but rather to make the absorption as easy as possible, I think most people have forgotten that."

Lisbona prepared a study guide which included questions from previous exams, and used it as a basis for reviewing the year-long introductory course.

"I think that it was very useful," said third arts year student, Brian Wilks, "I feel that I'm now pretty well prepared. Lisbona said people were very receptive to the event since half the money was going to charity, and most of them were in dire need of a comprehensive economic review two days before their exam."

"The event would not have taken place had it not been for the efforts of current Carleton University students Steve Greenwood and Shawn Mendel," Lisbona said. "They were the ones who did most of the legwork, I simply spent six hours teaching!"

Lisbona also thanked the Jewish Community Centre staff. "We have done this for two years now, and both times the JCC staff have been terrific, I would especially like to thank Mr. Ron Boro for making all of the necessary arrangements."

Lisbona is already preparing for next year's session, tentatively scheduled for April 11, 1993.

Guarantees spiritual and religious survival

'Family-in-Israel' program ensures the future

Canadian Jews have always been among the most devoted contributors to the State of Israel, assisting financially whenever the call has come.

Now, through the aid of Emunah Women of Canada's "Family-in-Israel" program, Canadian Jewry has the opportunity to guarantee the spiritual and religious survival of the future of the State of Israel: its children.

Whether born in Israel, Ethiopia, the Soviet Union, or elsewhere in the Diaspora, it is the children of Israel who will continue the traditions and pass them on to generations to come.

By adopting a child in an Emunah project, that child is enabled to reap the benefits of the highest standards of care and education, based on Torah values and grounded in Jewish tradition.

Through Emunah's programs, some 10,000 immigrant families have benefited by being 'adopted' while services have been extended throughout 75 communities in Israel.

Emunah has sponsored and provided life-cycle ceremonies, ongoing religious education, the translation of religious material into Russian and Amharic and the absorption of the children of olim into a vast network of day care centers, schools, the Emunah College and residential homes, such as Neve Michael Children's Village.

This year, some 15,000 Russian families experienced a kosher Seder, many for the first time ever.

Thanks to Emunah, volunteers are the backbone of Emunah's many programs. Recently, the Knesset's Chagall Hall was the scene of an impressive ceremony when Emunah received the Speaker of the Knesset Quality of Life Award for outstanding work in spiritual absorption. This award was bestowed in recognition of the work of thousands of Emunah volunteers throughout Israel. They would not have won this recognition without the help of our many contributors.

Every woman participating in the 'Mother-in-Israel' program receives a specially-designed pin, a token of appreciation for the Mitzvah of bringing home and security into a child's life.

Emunah's "Family-in-Israel" program is a true Jewish family affair, a celebration of our partnership with the State of Israel and its children...our children.

To become a part of this special partnership, contact Emunah Women, c/o Mrs. Eva Minuk, 798-0738.

Closing meeting features Holocaust through senses

The Ottawa Children of Holocaust Survivors are preparing an informal end-of-the-year gathering: a display of work by local artists in various media relating to the Holocaust.

Drawings by Claire Cohen, paintings by Oded Ravek, a powerful piece in three parts by Jonathan Browns, excerpts from short stories by Nestor Hobe, as well as songs by Anne-Marie Kovacs will be introduced and will, no doubt, provoke stimulating discussions.

This event, an experience for all the senses, will take place Thursday, June 18 at 8:00 p.m. at the home of Esther Schvan in Nepean.

Services and Kiddush at Machzikei Hadas

ORT launching celebration month at June Shabbat

Ottawa Women's ORT - organization for educational research and technological training - is busy planning its annual ORT month celebration.

On Saturday morning, June 6 Ottawa Women's ORT will co-host the shabbat Kiddush at Congregation Machzikei Hadas, 2310 Virginia Dr. ORT members from across the city who will be attending morning services, welcome the community to join in their celebration of national ORT month. Rabbi Reuven Bulka, spiritual leader of Congregation Machzikei Hadas, will devote his sermon to the various activities of ORT.

Over 220,000 students

ORT operates the world's largest non-governmental, non-profit school network for vocational and technical training, with an annual-student body of over 220,000 students. ORT schools now exist in over 40 countries on five continents. ORT's global network ranges from Angola to Zimbabwe, with large ORT programs in Argentina, Brazil, France, India, Italy, Morocco and Switzerland.

Israel, however, has the largest student body - over 90,000 students and 6,500 teachers in 148 schools. In Israel, ORT is a major contributor to vocational and technical education at the secondary level and, in fact one-quarter of the work force has received ORT training.

Immigrant enrolment

The most immediate challenge ORT Israel faces is the rapidly increasing enrolment of immigrants, especially from the Soviet Union, Argentina and Ethiopia. From Russia alone over 4,000 adults are now benefiting from the retraining courses run by the ORT Adult Education Institute, in addition to the 3,000 children integrated into ORT Israel's vast network.

The heads of governments and leading educators throughout the world, have acknowledged ORT's expertise and seek the advice and methodology which has been tried and perfected.

Technological expertise

ORT provides the technological expertise required to meet the needs of the 21st century which is necessary for survival of both the individual and society.

ORT has always provided the gift of dignity and security - over 150,000,000 people have received training through ORT since 1880.

Ottawa women's ORT is always open for new members and welcomes any questions. For information call immediate past president Lynn Levitan at 828-6229 or Regional President Susan Marcus at 226-1971. National office is in Toronto at Women's Canadian ORT, 3101 Bathurst St., #604, Toronto, Ontario, M6A 2A6.

Commemorating the Six Million

Remembrance must be coupled with action: Krell

Dr. Robert Krell urges the community to pursue remembrance and action.

The Anne Frank High School Choir conducted by choirmaster Ervin Klein sings "Ani Ma'Amin."

Holocaust Remembrance Committee Chair Vera Gara opens the ceremony as the Canadian War Veterans, National Capital Post stand guard.

Members of the Hidden Children Group light the six torches of commemoration.

The annual commemoration of Yom Ha Shoah held April 29 at the Jewish Community Cemetery focussed on the theme of the Hidden Child. A moving address was given by keynote speaker Dr. Robert Krell, a Vancouver psychiatrist who was hidden as a child in Holland and has been an activist for Holocaust education and documentation.

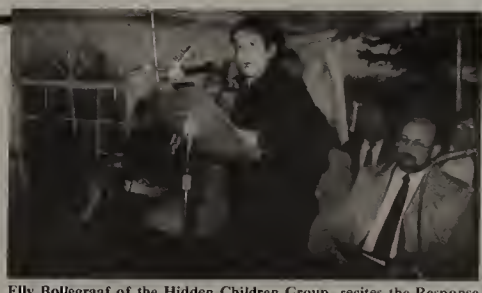

Dr. Krell told the gathering of 500 people that remembrance must be coupled with action, particularly Holocaust education and involvement in the State of Israel. He also suggested that people should not only travel to see the death camps, but talk to and record the stories of survivors in their own community.

The ceremony was chaired by Vera Gara, chair of the Holocaust Remembrance Committee of the Jewish Community Council of Ottawa. Members of the Hidden Children Group of Ottawa lit the six memorial torches erected next to the Holocaust Memorial and read the Yiddish and English "Legacy" and "Acceptance". The Anne Frank High School Choir of Budapest, Hungary performed.

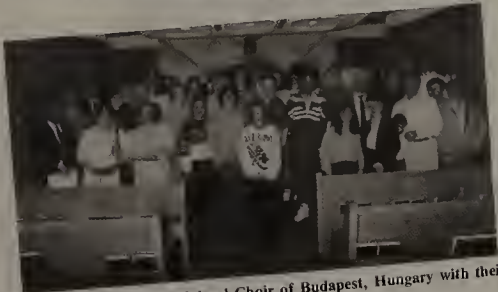

Greetings were presented by Dr. Maureen Molot, president, Jewish Community Council of Ottawa and His Excellency Itzhak Shelef, ambassador of Israel to Canada. The Jewish War Veterans opened the program with the raising of the flags.

An absorbed audience listens to keynote speaker Dr. Robert Krell.

Eleven-year-old Jory Steinberg is wowing Canadian audiences

Last summer, Jory Steinberg made her professional debut at the tender age of ten when she appeared in the '91 bilingual Canadian tour of Les Misérables. This summer she is repeating her role as young Cosette and Eponine in the closing of the long running Toronto production from June 1 - July 22 and again in Ottawa at the National Arts Centre from July 30 - August 15.

Over the last year, Jory's voice has been featured in several animated T.V. specials, including a "Bunch of Munsch" where she was the principal character in "The Paper Bag Princess" and "Moiré's Birthday" produced at Cinar Studios in Montreal. She has also starred as the voice of Dawn in the animated T.V. special based on the popular comic strip "For Better Or For Worse" produced by Lacewood Productions in Ottawa.

A proud Canadian, Jory was chosen to sing our National Anthem at several major sporting and diplomatic events. She has performed "O Canada" at the official opening ceremonies of the '92 Junior World Figure Skating Championships, numerous hockey tournaments and at special Canadian 125th Anniversary events. These included the Reaffirmation of Canadian Citizenship Ceremony held at the National Arts Centre in Ottawa and on Parliament Hill during the "Proud To Be

Jory Steinberg

Canadian" rally. Jory also performed "O Canada" by special invitation of Ottawa Mayor Jacques Holzman to mark the opening of the new City Council's first official meeting.

Jory has also recently been selected to appear in a national television commercial by special invitation of the Prime Minister's office. In the commercial, Jory will be promoting Canadian patriotism along with other national celebrities including Celine Dion, Roch Voisin and "Phantom of the Opera's" Jeff Hyslop.

In addition to appearing on the '92 Children's Hospital Telethon to be aired on C.J.O.H. T.V. on May 30 and 31, she has also entertained V.I.P. guests of the World Cup Champions on Ice Tour starring Elizabeth Manley and Robin Cousins.

Jory takes weekly voice training from Yoriko Tanno Kimmons in Ottawa and studies piano as well. She is currently being groomed as a performer by Ottawa promoter and personal manager Stephan Klován of Alanis and Ice Capades fame.

Jory, a student at Hillel Academy, is the daughter of Sharon and Gary Steinberg.

Yom Ha'Atzmaut draws huge crowd

Chairperson Ellen Fathi welcomes the community.

By Diane Koven Porish

This year's Yom Ha'Atzmaut celebration was one of the biggest and best ever!

Record numbers of people of all ages converged on the parking lot of Machzikei Hadas Synagogue where the outside Yom Ha'Zikaron ceremony was held.

Following greetings, opening remarks by the chairpersons and the lighting of the memorial flame by His Excellency Itzhak Shelif, Ambassador of Israel to Canada, Rabbi Bulka blew the shofar to signify the end of mourning and the beginning of the celebration. The 39th Henry "Hank" Torontow Cub Pack and Beaver Colony led the crowd inside for the festivities.

The entertainment was plentiful and varied — the Hillel Academy Choir, a guest performance by the Anne Frank High School Choir from Budapest, the debut of the JCC Performance Dance Troupe led by Michal Strassberg, and the featured entertainers, the Henry Abbitan orchestra oriental from Montreal.

Young and old danced the night away, stopping only to refresh themselves downstairs with Jack Smith's famous food and drinks.

Thanks go out to chairpersons Ray and Ellen Fathi and co-chairpersons Jean and Danielle Boulakia, as well as to their able committee for a job well done.

The large crowd overflowed Machzikei Hadas Synagogue.

The Israeli flag is held aloft at Ottawa City Hall by Mayor Jacquelin Holzman and Israeli Ministry Counsellor Yaakov Paran as JCC President Lawrence Greenspon (right) and Jean Boulakia watch.

Israeli Ambassador Itzhak Shelif lights the memorial flame as chairpersons Ray Fathi, Danielle Boulakia and Ellen Fathi look on.

Elliot Levitan enters Sports Hall of Fame

Elliot Levitan

The Jewish Community Centre is very pleased to announce that it will be inducting Elliot Levitan into the Ottawa Jewish Community Sports Hall of Fame. The induction will take place at the JCC Annual General Meeting on June 4, at 151 Chapel Street.

A native Ottawan, Elliot has been involved in a wide variety of sports since he was in high school. He played interscholastic bantam, midget, and junior basketball while at Lisgar Collegiate. He also played house league hockey at Lisgar and was a member of the winning team.

After high school, he continued playing basketball. He was a member of the Morrisberg Sailors of the Senior City League and also played for the B'nai Brith Canadian Finalist Basketball team of 1947.

During that period he also played tennis at the Tel-Aviv Tennis Club where he won two "B" Singles Championships.

From 1953-1967 he also played basketball in the JCC house league. In 1962, he was a member of the JCC team which won the Intermediate City League Championship.

That same year he won the "B" Handball Singles Championship at the JCC and the "A" Handball Doubles Championship, together with Dan Kimmel. He was named the 1962-63 JCC Athlete of the Year.

Today he continues to keep fit by playing golf.

Looking back on his life-long involvement in a variety of sports Elliot recalls: "Back then we didn't have television, so we played sports... We were young and it was fun." He believes that an early involvement in sports not only begins a lifelong habit, it also promotes social and community ties.

Volunteers honoured

JCC Annual Meeting June 4

By Estelle Melzer

The Jewish Community Centre's Annual General Meeting and Awards Night will take place on Thursday, June 4, at 7:00 p.m. at the Jewish Community Centre.

It is an evening for the JCC to thank its many volunteers who make the Centre's programs possible and to recognize special achievements in and contributions to our community.

New awards

Three new awards will be introduced that evening. The Irving "Shap" Shapiro Memorial Award will honour an individual who has made a long-term contribution to sports and recreation in the community, both as a participant and an organizer.

The Jack Goldfield Memorial Award will go to a male and female teen in recognition of their achievement, participation and organizational involvement in athletics, during the whole year.

The Graduating Student Athletic Achievement Award will go to a graduating high school student for outstanding athletic achievement throughout his or her scholastic career.

As well, the JCC presents two other major awards at its annual meeting. The Grossman-Klein Family Youth Awards are given to one male and one female teen in recognition of their volunteer service to the Jewish community. These awards consist of $250.00 Israeli Bonds.

Highest award

The Ben Karp JCC Volunteer of the Year Award, named in honour of the late and deeply-missed Ben Karp — truly a volunteer extraordinaire — is the highest award the JCC bestows. It will be awarded to one individual in recognition of outstanding volunteer contributions to the Jewish Community Centre.

The Ottawa Jewish Sports Hall of Fame will receive a new member. Versatile athlete Elliot Levitan will be the 1992 inductee. (See article on this page.)

Mini-concert

The evening will also include the induction of the 1992-93 JCC Board of Directors and a mini-concert by the JCC Concert Band.

These talented musicians will present a selection of pop tunes, featuring a clarinet quartet and a sixteen-piece group as well as the full band.

Everyone is invited to attend the evening, meet the JCC Board, and express his appreciation to the many volunteers who add to the quality of life of our community.

Chicago - Smash Hit

Under the guidance of Robert Gould and Raiph Kassie, the teens put on a performance that they, and we, can all be proud of. Months of hard work were evident from the moment the curtain rose until the finale. We have almost come to expect the dedication and hard work that these young adults bring to the Centre's annual teen play. However, in addition to those qualities, the level of professional achievement was such that many individuals were wondering aloud about where the show goes from here — Montreal, Toronto, London, (that's Ontario) or possibly the United States.

Congratulations have to be coupled with great thanks to all those involved with the production. Thanks for showing the entire community what can be done when many hearts and minds decide collectively to do the absolute best that they can.

You have surpassed all expectations, and we very much look forward not only to next year's production, but to the continued involvement of all in the programs and events in our community.

JCC Annual General Meeting - June 4, 1992

It has been an absolute privilege to work with the members of the Executive and Board of Directors of the Jewish Community Centre for the past year. Every single individual on our Board, without exception, has become involved in a specialized area, community events, and by participating at Board meetings. For this, our community owes all of them a debt of gratitude. It is for this reason that I am delighted that all of our Board members will be returning for another year, and our Board will be further strengthened by the participation of two new members, Sarah Swedler (of Arts Alive fame) and Howie Shapero.

The following nominated members of the JCC Board of Directors are as follows: Shelley Berezin, Cynthia Blumenthal, David Blumenthal, Betsy Borden, Dr. Rabbi Reuven Bulka, Izzy Farber, Jack Gold, Jeff Gould, Judy Hoffman, Elissa Iny, Nap Kapinsky, Gabe Karlin, Rhona Levine, Donna Nadoiny, Jeff Pleet, Issie Rose, Allan Ruckenstein, Ian Sadinsky, Ester Schvan, Ian Shabinsky, Howie Shapero, Sarah Swedler, Penny Toronto.

The nominated members of the Executive are: Jeff Gould, Lawrence Greenspon, Dr. Nordau Kanigsberg, Carol Kassie, Perry Medicoft, Ron Prehogan, and Morris Presser.

Board members Betsy Borden and Penny Toronto together with the Jewish Community Centre staff have planned the Annual General Meeting which will take place on Thursday, June 4, beginning at 7:00 p.m. at the Jewish Community Centre.

The Annual General Meeting will be followed by the presentation of Volunteer Appreciation Certificates and the presentation of Jewish Community Centre Special Awards.

We look forward to seeing you on June 4, 1992.

Chicago wows the critics!

"(Chicago) was polished, dynamic, truly upbeat. The whole cast had style and talent, and the leads — Jeremy Cammy, Adrienne Gould, Jennifer Finestone and Leah State as Billy Flynn, Roxie Hart, Velma and Matron — gave vivid, high-stepping, power-singing performances. Jeff Kanter directed the show.

"It's a pity that it won't be on longer than the Wednesday and Thursday."

—Charles Haines, CBC, All In a Day

"The Jewish Community Centre theatre-works has pulled together once again to put on their annual production..."

"Roxie is played by Adrienne Gould, who is perfect as the sexy, aspiring starlet. She pulls off the whole role convincingly. She has a wonderful voice and really lets her talent shine through in this character.

Particularly impressive was the number called We Both Reached for the Gun where Roxie does an interesting kind of duet with her lawyer, Billy Flynn.

"Jeremy Cammy played the role of the lawyer to perfection. He made this sleazy character come to life, making him seem like a combination lounge singer and game show host. His number All I Care About was hilarious to watch and the audience loved it.

"The whole cast was well put together and performed with a great amount of talent.

"An honorable mention should be given to Amos (played by Michael Blank), Roxie's husband who never gets noticed by other people. Blank made the role particularly amusing to watch."

—Kathleen Smiley, Ottawa Citizen

Youth Athletics: The Year in Review

By Jon Braun
Director of Youth & Athletic Services

Around this time of year, we like to reflect on the past season of fun participation in JCC Youth Athletics.

Sports Camp was a blast, as usual. When you're doing so many cool things such as waterskiing, windsurfing, canoeing, horsebackriding, tennis, swimming at waterslides and wave pools, and going to Expos games, the fun is guaranteed.

During the fall, floor hockey is IT. Junior floor hockey had two divisions. Twenty-five youngsters, aged 5 to 7, played in the rookie division, while the Big Show division had 40 kids and four teams. It was an exciting season, as Team Purple got the gold.

Pre-teen floor hockey had the guys running around the gym until they were ready to drop. Teen floor hockey was as competitive as ever. They boys play tough, but keep it clean, usually.

Ski School had a snow-filled season. Although we had some nippy Sundays, the kids were out there working on their turns, and, of course, hanging out by the fireplace, eating health food.

Our second ski program, the Teen Bus, had 35 teens, checking out a different slope for each of five weeks.

Next year, the Teen Bus may wander as far as White Face Mountain in New York, and a March break ski trip may also be in the works.

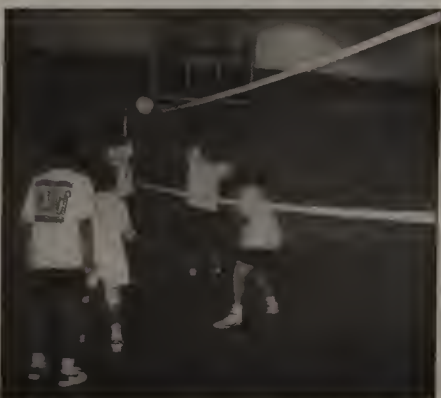

Our Road Trip Club also hit the highways, heading to the Big Owe for a box seat view of the Expos against the Braves.

After school programs kept the kids busy at 881 Broadview, with basketball in the fall and soccer in the spring.

Ten basketball and volleyball prepared kids for the Maccabi tryouts in February. Our community will be sending a boys and a girls volleyball team, as well as a boys basketball team, a tennis squad, a gymnast and two table tennis players. In all 40 Ottawa youth will attend the Maccabi Youth Games in Baltimore this August.

Have a great summer. See you in the gym next fall.

Maccabi Volleyball Team "Smokes" Alumni!

In a recent game, the 1992 Maccabi Youth volleyball squad took on the alumni squad which won a silver medal in 1990 in Detroit. The exhibition, which was won by this year's team, gave the athletes an opportunity to show their stuff before the Maccabi Youth Games, which will be held in Baltimore in August.

Over one hundred single Jewish comedians, dancers, singers, talkers, laughers, lovers and partners came to Ottawa for the JCC's Inter-city Singles weekend, May 15 to 18.

They came from such exotic places as Syracuse, Toronto, Buffalo, Kingston, Montreal and Rochester. Of course, they were hosted by the home crowd, who came out in full force.

The energetic program began with a Shabbat dinner followed by a "dessert" of the Dating Game — a match made in heaven for several lucky people. The questions and answers were certainly eye-opening and evoked many rounds of laughter. (i.e. What are the fastest and slowest things you do?)

Power Flirting

Saturday included a delectable brunch followed by a dynamic discussion on The Art of Power Flirting. Techniques were put to good use throughout the weekend.

Karaoke night at the JCC encouraged many people to demonstrate their singing talents on stage. Although there were a few sweet songs, most of the participants hit some sour, yet spirited notes.

After tweeting all night, we arose with the birds on Sunday to a light breakfast, followed by a double-decker bus tour of the city. Ottawa was alive with the colours, smells and sounds of springtime and the tulip festival. A deli lunch was worked off by walking tours of the Governor-General's residence or the market area, or lively Israeli dancing.

A scrumptious Chinese dinner was shaken, rattled and rolled off that night by dancing to the fantastic sound of the band, Fizz, at the National Arts Centre. We all boogied until we dropped. Many additional singles from Montreal and Ottawa showed up for this special event.

Party hearty

Some adventurous souls continued to party hearty at market area night spots until late into the wee hours of the night.

Karaoke Night

Tired party-worn animals then showed up several hours later for a farewell brunch on Monday morning. Names and telephone numbers were exchanged with the many new friends made.

The Jewish Community Centre and staffer Diane Poriah, chairperson Penny Toronto and committee members Karen Oxorn, Arlene Babbins, Gaby Sassoon, Allan Ruckenstein, Miriam Birnbaum, Raymond Samuels, Sue Greenberg, Frayda Bokhaut and Stacy Cohen deserve a round of applause and our sincere thanks for a spectacular weekend.

A repeat performance will hopefully be organized next year.

Golden Age Club hosts interesting speakers

Roslyn Postner of Family Legacy Productions was the guest speaker at a recent Golden Age Club meeting. Her talk at the JCC was titled: "What will your grandchildren know about your days."

Roslyn believes that "a permanent record of our personal and family history is an important gift and one that only we can give to our future generations."

The idea for her business, Family Legacy Productions, came when her daughter, at a time of sadness, said: "Mummy, I wish I knew my grandparents."

Roslyn, who has worked as a psychologist and psychomotricist, assists people in preserving their family heritage through teaching courses on life-story writing.

The Golden Age Club is run by a dynamic executive committee who work together with JCC staff to plan their weekly activities.

Catered luncheons with live entertainment are planned for all holidays. Monthly Bingo luncheons are full of fun, and regular meetings keep members up-to-date with each other's news.

Once business is out of the way, members enjoy interesting speakers, films, and workshops. In the warmer months, exciting trips take seniors out of the city for new adventures.

For program information, please call Betty Rosenberg at 722-8136 or the JCC at 238-1818.

JEWISH ARTISTS' GUILD CALL TO ENTRY

The Jewish Artists' Guild invites its members to participate in its inaugural exhibition to be held Sunday, September 20.

Entry forms will be available at the next general meeting, Tuesday, June 2, or by contacting Diane Poriah at 238-1818. New members are welcome.

REMINDER

Submissions for the logo design and the name of the inaugural show are due by May 25. The final choices will be voted upon at the general meeting. Please attend on June 2 as this meeting is vital to the success of the Fall Exhibition.

New programs at JCC Day Camp '92

By Gate Greenberg

The summer of '92 is looking great for JCC Day Camp. Lots of new ideas are being implemented to ensure our campers of a memorable camp experience.

Many theme days have been planned. These include programs with exotic titles such as Monster Masa, Detective Day, Tropical Thursday, Aliens, and Carnival Day featuring Circus Delights.

Past favourites to be included are Maccabiah, Family Fun Night, B.B.Q.s, Kanata Wave Pool, overnights and evening programs.

New sports group

New this year are our sports group and extended camp care programs which have received a tremendous response. (See ad on this page.)

Children entering senior kindergarten or grade one may want to be placed in the sports group. Instead of drama and dance, this group will be involved in a sports program. Pre-registration is a must. Please call Gale at 722-9235 if interested.

Registration has been very strong this year and we are looking forward to a fabulous camp season, with lots of fun and surprises in store for your children.

ADD ANOTHER ONE TO OUR WALL:

Congratulations to all 39th Henry "Hank" Torontow Beaver Cubs members. We have been awarded by the Provincial Council for Ontario-Scouts Canada a real neat certificate "for outstanding work in providing opportunities to youth, to grow, develop and love and serve God, by reaching 101% and more of last year's membership." Mazel tov! Next time you are at the J.C.C.'s 151 Chapel office, drop in and see many of our local, provincial and international certificates.

LET'S BE PROUD OF OUR CAMPUS:

Both our Monday and Wednesday night Cub Packs, in support of the National Environmental Week designation by Scouts-Canada, picked up 8 large garbage bags full of refuse from all around the 881 Broadview Campus. Let's be proud of our great facility and keep it clean.

STONEY SWAMP PARKVALE AREA HIKE:

The skies were a little grey, but good old Mother Nature held off for the 85 Parkvale Area Cubs who enjoyed a magnificent 6 km hike. The 39th had 17 cubs participate. We had a great time navigating through those "man-eating" mud holes! If you have never had an opportunity to hike through this "wheelchair" accessible trail, please speak to Kaa Michael Walsh for more information.

The 1992 official Henry "Hank" Torontow summer T-shirts are now out! Many thanks to Akela Howard's big brother, striking C.B.E. Art Dept. Head, Irving Osterer, for doing a great hands-on silk-screening program.

All those cubs who participated in the two night program took home with them a real neat T-shirt with our new logo. These shirts should be worn for all upcoming May and June programs. Neckers are not required!

TREES FOR CANADA

Since 1972, Canadian Scouting has planted over 35 million trees in parks and conservation areas across the country. On Sunday, May 11, the 39th Beaver Colony and Cub Pack took part, for our very first time, in this very worthwhile conservation program.

Many thanks to Akela, Nancy Smith, who met us and organized our Sunday afternoon planting, and all those parents and leaders who stayed with us to help plant.

PARENT APPRECIATION NIGHT, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 3, 881 Broadview, 6:30 sharp - BBQ.

You are invited to witness the older beavers "swim-up" to the Cub Pack, and to take part in Jewish Scouting history by participating in the re-establishment of the 39th Scout Troop on June 3.

There will be a BBQ supper (cost $5.00 per family), for all 39th members. Don't forget, bring your cameras and autograph books. There will be Scouts-Canada representatives to answer all your questions about the new scout troop. See you there!

REGISTRATION

The 1992-93 forms have been handed out to all Beaver and Cub members. Rumours have it that we will be operating only one Cub Pack with approximately 50 Cubs, one Beaver Colony, and one Scout Troop.

We need new leaders - female and male - to continue on. Please, think about it. If you are interested, please call Akela Howie Osterer at 737-7525. Your involvement could make the difference in our program's success!

Scout troop for ages 11 + planned for fall

The JCC and the 39th Henry "Hank" Torontow Scouting program are proud to announce the re-establishment of the 39th Scout Troop, under the leadership of Scoutier (Akela) Howard Osterer.

74 years ago

The 39th Scout Troop was last active in Ottawa 74 years ago.

Next year, Jewish boys and girls, aged 11 to 16, will have an opportunity to participate in one of the most successful youth programs offered.

All our members will experience many outdoor adventures, such as hiking, wintercamping, canoeing, and orienteering. We may also have an opportunity to attend the 1993 Jamboree in Alberta.

Catch the scouting spirit! You and any interested friends and family members are invited to join the 39th Beaver Colony and Cub Pack final BBQ and appreciation night on Wednesday, June 3 at 6:30 p.m. at 881 Broadview.

Representatives of Scouts Canada will be there to answer all your questions. For more information call Gale Greenberg at 722-9235. Call early. Enrolment is limited to 20 scouts.

Leaders — male & female — needed for Jewish Scouting.
Call: Howie Osterer at 737-7525 if you can lend a hand.

JCC Men's Hockey League News

By Howard Yegendorf

REBELS STYMIE SHARK ATTACK TO CAPTURE LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP

The JMHL playoffs proved to be the excitement-filled "second season" that we all expected. As this pundit predicted, the Running Rebels won their first league championship after a spirited series with the reigning champion Blue Sharks.

The semi-finals saw the Rebels handle the Wildcats with relative ease. However, the series between the Blue Sharks and the Golden Gophers was an entirely different matter. After tying the first game, the Gophers pushed the Sharks to the brink of elimination by winning game 2. The Sharks, however, fought back and won game 3 forcing a European-style 5-shot shoot out.

Due to ice-time restraints, there is no overtime in the JMHL, so resort must be had to what I believe is an unfortunate method of breaking play-off ties. The first four Shark-shooters scored and that was all the Sharks needed to move up to the finals. Many of the Running Rebels were relieved at the outcome of this series as they had had trouble with the physically tough Gophers all season long.

The finals kicked off with a 3-2 win by the Rebels. The score could have been much higher due to the wide margin of play enjoyed by the Rebels, but Shark goalie Ian Abramson kept his teammates in the game.

Rebel back-stop Wayne Smith was bombed 8-3 in game 2, allowing a number of soft goals. The Sharks were so flushed with victory that after the game they were all dancing in the arena parking lot to the beat of the hard-rock group, Nirvana.

These disco-Sharks may have thought that they had gone to Nirvana after game 2, but the Running Rebels brought them back to Earth in game 3. Goalie Smith displayed great character and came back with a very sharp game making a number of timely and spectacular saves. However, this was championship hockey and it was not to be easy for the Rebels.

Down 3-0, the Sharks refused to give up and with only five minutes left in the game, they finally got on the scoreboard. With two minutes left, Shark captain Mark Kerzner came up with one of his patented academy performances and somehow managed to get two Rebels in the penalty box. Kerzner could teach Greg Louganis a thing or two about diving. Mark should really consider a career in Hollywood as a dramatic actor or stand-up, or rather, fall-down comic. With a two man advantage and their net empty, the Sharks scored again pulling to within one goal with just over a minute remaining. The game ended with a frenzied scramble around the Rebel net, but the puck stayed out and the Rebels were the new JMHL champs.

The Rebels and the Sharks were intense rivals all season long and the series was marred by some unpleasant altercations including one, believe it or not, during the post-game hand-shaking ceremony. A disgusted and embarrassed Albert Guite (league commissioner) could only shake his head.

Nor did the controversy end there. The Rebels' post-game celebration at a nearby restaurant came to an abrupt end when the team was escorted out by members of the Kanata Detachment of the O.P.P. The chief rabble-rouser (you know who you are) will have to invest in a fast-food franchise so that he and his fellow Rebels can congregate in public. This may all leave the impression that the Rebels are deserving of their bad-boy image. However, after receiving the final stats from Albert Guite, I note that the Rebels were in fact the least penalized team in the league by quite a margin. John Dover's Golden Gophers by far and away led the league in penalty minutes.

In the better-news department, I can report that the Blue Sharks continue to build for the future with the addition of yet two more baby boys, making it five future draft choices for this season alone. Congratulations to Kelvin and Ruth Gillman and Simon and Cathy Bitton.

Team captains voted on individual award-winners this season. Most valuable player went to my favourite player and linemate Mitchell Besner who also ran away with the scoring title. Rookie of the Year was Golden Gopher forward Brian Kronick, always deadly around the net. Most gentlemanly player honours went to Shark defenceman Jack Klein, who just squeaked by a couple of fellow nice-guys Brian Bailey and Mark Shore (Not!).

As this will be the last column of the season, I wish to thank those players who put in the extra time and effort required to make this league function smoothly.

THANKS TO DAVE "Joe Who" Ross who rammed through an amendment to the league constitution aimed at eliminating fighting. The new definition of a fight requires two punches to be thrown. One punch is just roughing. (Mordecai Richler would have a field-day with us.) Although Dave and I like to kid each other I can say unequivocally that his commitment and dedication to this league is without parallel.

AND THANKS TO team captains Jeff Goldman, Mark Kerzner, John Dover and Fred Seller, and of course to league commissioner Albert Guite, all of whom mainly have to put up with all the meshugat (spelled with Bulka, R., no less) generated whenever two or more Jewish men get together to play a sport.

I wish you all a great summer and we'll see you at opening face-off in October.

Face-off in the JMHL Finals

Six teams set to play in JWSL

The 1992 Jewish Women's Softball League continues to be strong and reputable, thanks to one special volunteer, Penny Torontow.

Penny has done a fantastic job of recruiting players for the 1992 season. At one point, the committee believed that the league would have to cut back to four teams, but Penny's dedication and hard work has managed to attract enough players to enter six teams into the league.

Penny has also done a great job trying to keep all six teams as fair as possible and friends together whenever requested.

The JWSL would like to welcome all the new players to the league. Once again, all the games will be played on Tuesday night at 6:30 p.m. at both the Broadview and New Edinburgh softball diamonds.

The Jewish Community Centre and the Jewish Women's Softball League would like to thank the following sponsors and captains for their support: Art Hair Coiffure - Andrea Gardner, captain; Kiddie Kobbler - Jannis Klein, captain; Videonolies - Rhea Hymes Hochstadter and Jenny Citron, captains; Goldfinger Jewellery - Heather Cogan, captain; Thelcn & Torontow Lighting - Karen Silverman, captain; Outskirts - Anna Silverman, captain.

Bigger and better '92 JMSL has new rules

By Albert Guite

The 1992 Jewish Men's Softball League volunteer committee of Ian Abramson, Dave Ross, and Saul Mogelonsky has put in many dedicated hours of hard work to make the 1992 edition of the JMHL bigger and better.

With the addition of two new teams to the league, the number of games for the year almost had to be cut back. Dave Ross, however, was able to get the league another softball diamond for the season, so that each team could play more games.

A special thank you goes out to Mark Kerzner for pinch hitting and doing a super job of helping to get the season schedule prepared. The schedule had to be revised at the last minute since a new team joined the league.

The league has also obtained the umpiring services of Ken

Holder and company for the 1992 softball season. Ken is responsible and professional in his work ethic. He and his crew will help to make the JMHL a fair and reputable league.

Rule changes

A few changes to the JMHL Constitution of Rules will be implemented this season: 1) "C" Division teams will only play versus each other. The "A" and "B" Divisions will continue to have some inter-division games. 2) Teams will be permitted to start a game with eight players. 3) Teams will be permitted to finish a game with seven players unless the eighth player is ejected from the game. 4) Players must play a minimum of six games to be eligible for the play-offs.

The JMHL is looking forward to its best season ever. See you on the diamond.

The Jewish Community Centre and the Jewish Men's Softball League would like to thank the following sponsors and captains for contributing to this year's JMHL

"A Division"

- 1) Pasquales - David Ross
- 2) Equity Management - Irv Osterer & Jeff Pleet

Harold (Joe) Shenkman Establishes Yiddish Scholarship Fund

The Ottawa Jewish Community Foundation wishes to announce the establishment of the Abraham Irving Shenkman Yiddish Scholarship Fund by Harold (Joe) Shenkman.

The fund is being established to perpetuate the memory of his dear brother Abraham who passed away in 1926 at the age of 16. Abraham was one of four sons of the late Max and Dora Shenkman.

This fund is an expression of Joe's great love of the Yiddish language and of Yiddish humour. There has been a recent revival of interest in the speaking and reading of Yiddish throughout the Jewish world. Joe, who speaks Yiddish fluently, hopes that it will kindle and stimulate enthusiasm for the Yiddish language among the teenagers in our school system here in Ottawa.

Scholarships will be awarded annually to students of the Yiddish class, being taught by Leah Kalin at the Akiva High School, to further their Yiddish education. The dollars for the scholarships will come from this fund.

The Abraham Irving Shenkman Yiddish Scholarship Fund will be open ended and friends may add to it anytime.

The officers and Directors extend a Yasher Koach to Joe Shenkman for his financial support to initiate this program.

Tea honors memory of late Sadie Silverman

The Women's Auxiliary of Hillel Lodge is having its Annual Spring Tea on Sunday, June 14 from 2-4 p.m. at the Lodge, 125 Wurttemberg Street. Miriam Levitin is the convener.

Within the Auxiliary is a group of dedicated volunteers whose primary commitment is to assist in various ways to improve the quality of life for the Lodge residents. Their major fundraising effort consists of biannual teas held each Spring and Fall at Hillel Lodge.

The tea to be held this Spring will be dedicated to the memory of the late Mrs. Sadie (Jack) Silverman, a volunteer and worthy member of the Auxiliary almost from the inception of Hillel Lodge.

Sadie gave of herself in every direction including participation in the Arts and Crafts group. She chaired Life Memberships, and served as chair of both the Golden Age luncheons and annual teas, as well as visiting the hospitalized residents.

It is hoped that many of our supporters will find the time to attend the June 14 Spring tea at Hillel Lodge.
